Sore Throat Not To Be Ignored.

IN MY MAIL the other day I in certain countries where vicedia had a sad letter from a mother who tion against small was is compa nad recently lost her child. Surely the same thing could rest a who have cast absent Bent of 32 Fast Farming street. the little victim from the clutches operation of every, a concerned of diphtheria Every one will sympathize with this mother. It is her dicate, Inc. wish that I warn all other mothers

There is no doubt that this child well as thousands of other children, could have been saved from untimely death if the necessary steps had been taken to guard against dightheria. It can not be questioned that modern methods of innoculation against diphtheria have saved the lives of millions of

Recently, in New York City, the mi donth child received the inoculation. That is a fine record. It is hoped that eventully every child ix months old will be given this protection May I assure every mother that adverse criticism of diphtheria is without scientific foundation. Every chi'd is entitled to receive this protection and should be given these injections Bear in mind that diphtheria is a disease that can be presented. But it can only be prevented if the nocessary injections are given

If a child is listless and con. plains of a sore throat and fever call your physician With such symptoms diphtheria should always be suspected if the child his not been inoculated against the disease Early recognition is es ential if the child's life is not to be endangered. When the disease is immediately recognized diph theria anti toxin can be given. It is only of value if given at the onset of the disease

Though it is sometimes possible to isolate children from diphtheria germs we never know when we may be exposed to these germs They are always present in our midst Guard against them by the protective measures modern science offers. The inoculations are not dangerous but it is extremely dangerous for your child to be without them

If there were universal use of these inoculations the disease could be entirely eradicated. We know what remarkable results have come from our attack against smallpox But at one time smallpox was a dreaded schurge of mankind and found in all parts of the world

With the discovery of vaccination and the enforcement of this method of protection, that disease has been most entirely wiped out In fact,

"I Pledged No Miracles."

Few of the military of Americans who have studied President Roosevelts latest message to the country are unmoved by the appeal for patience and faith which hes just beneath his words.

Mr. Roosevelt pledged himself to do his best. He predicted when he assumed the tremendous responsibilities of the presidency that he would make mistak's. More than most presidents, he placed hunself before the people as a failible human being, promising no miracles but dedicated to use his full power to attempt to lead the United States out of depression. The facts in his Sunday night message are important. Because the principal fact deals with a process that is little understood, even by so-called experts, however, it is the tone of his address that will be atudied most carefully. The effect of government purchasing and selling of gold to steady a fluctuating dollar is a matter that will need to be discussed against a more simplified background than Mr Roosevelt gave in his speech. It is obvious that the people's faith in the recovery effort is in a critical phase. The country is experiencing the reaction that follows too much enthusiasm Due partially to unwise actions which led people to expect too much and partially to the inevitable excesses of hope which are produced by the slightest brightening of prospects when despair has been general, confidence is experiencing a let-down

The case of farmers who have expressed dissatisfaction with the administration's program is typical. Apparently, they expected President Roosevelt to better their condition immediately, at the expense of other groups, if necessary. Because he has been unable to clear away their troubles instantaneously, some of them are ready to put their curse on his administration.

This attitude represents an obstacle in the recovery drive which was foreseen; the difficulty of maintaining the public's faith in the presence of disappointment. It is easy to forget that the national administration can do no more than mobilize the people's strength. It cannot perform miracles, nor can it force its way through any considerable amount of opposition. No matter how logical its program may be, it can do no more than the people are willing to do.

Fortunately, although falth has wavered where details of the program were concerned, the President still commands an undiminished following. The country believes that, given the advantage of a little luck, he will be able to lead the way to better times. Unfortunately, there is too little disposition to give him the advantage of whole-hearted cooperation. He has asked for vision, for steadfastness, for more than the usual amount of unselfishness. He has asked people to share with him the extraburdens imposed by the gigantle task he

If will be conceded generally that this country's recovery could be accomplished Immediately if all its citizens were willing to participate unselfishly in the effort. If such a thing were possible, the result, of course, would be the world's first Utopia. But it is not Utopia that is the objective. Only a fraction of the utmost cooperation if it was in a field of worthy adversaries that is needed to secure a state of better harmony and more satisfactory existence.

Refusal to give that fraction by any great number of people will bring disaster to any recovery program that any politician can submit. Mr. Roosevelt, struggling to overcome mightly problems, represents in a very realistic way, representative democracy's greatest struggle for preservation. In the present difficult phase of the recovery effort, that probably is the most important concept to bear in mind. Democracy 3 privileges are paid for with democracy's du-

An Honor for Marion.

A group of visitors is in Marion today. on highly important business. It is the business of the Red Cross, and that haire is sufficient to measure the significance and value of the day's conference.

Marion is sincerely appreciative of the honor that has come to it in being selected for this meeting, which brings Red Cross representatives here from various points in northern Ohio as well as national leaders in the organization. It is not only an honor, but it will tend to increase this community's Interest and activity in Red Cross service. That will be a substantial contribution to Marion's betterment, for every city derives benefits from its support of human welfare enterprises and in that field there is none greater than the Red Cross.

The benefits which come from participation in humanitarian projects are not the sort which can be tangibly and definitely appraised in figures or material profits. Yet there can be no mistake in saying there is no other branch of activity which contributes as much to sound, constructive development of a community.

Just as real success in the life of an individual is derived chiefly from the good that he does for others, so does that principle apply to communities. No city which falls short in its support of humanitarian service such as provided through the Red Cross and other great agencies can be classed as veritably progressive and American. In fact, the extent of its material growth and prosperity can usually be measured in proportion to its spirit and demonstration of philanthropy. That may be a selfish way of considering the subject and of course should not be regarded as a suitable motive for public welfare service. Yet it is a truth which cannot be denied.

The greatest compensation that comes from support of the Red Cross and other human service agencies is, of course, found in the soulful satisfaction and uplift which results from deing good. No other reward can come near measuring up to that. Persons built along narrow, self-centered, miscrly lines may disagree, but that's because they have never experienced the joy of help-

A Notable Victory.

Marion county is proud of Bethlehem Grange for its victory in the regional program contest at Findiay. And now all residents of the county will be awaiting the outcome of the state contest in Wooster with confident expectations of seeing the championship come this way.

But even though Bethlehem should fail in its quest for the state title, the distinction it has acquired in the series of victories thus far ir sufficient to mark it as a group of extraordinary ment.

A review of the competitive proceedings up to this time provides evidence that the Marion county organization's achievement is one of real magnitude. When the programof competition started a few months are. Bethlehem was one of 475 Grange units entered. All of those 475 represented a great and exceptionally progressive national agricultural organization and all prepared carefully and industriously for the centest. So Rethlehem put its skill and talent to the test. Now that it is one of three groups ; emerging from the list of 475 to try for honors in the final state conflict, it is deservedly receiving congratulations from the county it represents.

At the same time, the distinction is one which reflects credit to the entire Grance organization to Mation county. It is a disthetton care i through remarkably effective development of activities and steady increase in one ment which have made this county one of the cutstanding points in Grange affants of Ohio, of Commerce and the National Manufacturers' association hadn't come across to factory owners with the desired representation here in Washington, Plans were laid to raise funds to perpetuate the Secret Six through

Bringing Faster Relief From Headaches...Pain

For Quick Relief, Say BAYER Aspirin When You Buy

Here is quicker relief from pain-the fastest safe relief, it is said, ever known. This is due to a scientific discovery by which BAYER Aspirin starts "taking hold" of pain a few minutes after taking
The illustration of the glass here tells the story. A Bayer tablet starts to disintegrate or dissolve-go to work -almost instantly. This means quick relief from pain-fewer lost hours from headache, neuritis, rheumatism. And safe relief. For genuine Bayer Aspirin does not harm the heart.

When you buy, see that you get the genuine Bayer Aspirin. The best way is never to ask for aspirin by the name "aspirin" alone. But if you want Bayer Aspirin's quick relief always to say "BAYER Aspiria."
